OLD SHILOH CEMETERY

Historic Shelby
 Foundation

The Historic Shelby Foundation, Inc. has been the premier catalyst for the preservation of Cleveland County's historic architectural resources since 1982. The Shiloh Presbyterian Church Cemetery was identified by the Foundation, as an important historic resource and added to the state study list in 1998.

Shiloh Presbyterian Church was first known as the Shiloh Meeting House, the building in which the church congregation began holding its earliest services in the late 1700's. It is not known when they built their first Meeting House, originally called Calvary, but it was there when the battle of Kings Mountain was fought three miles away in 1780.

The history of the church and its cemetery is replete with the names of men and women who pioneered the settlement of Kings Creek near the border between North Carolina and South Carolina prior to the American Revolution. These pioneers were predominately German and Scots-Irish, a hardy and independent people who traveled to this area by the "Great Wagon Road".
